Dear Friends,

It is our privilege to share with you the Fiscal Year 2018 Annual Report for the Philadelphia Children’s Alliance. With your support, we continued to lead our community’s response to victims of child sexual abuse. From all neighborhoods throughout the City of Philadelphia, more than 2,000 children came to our facility for a coordinated response that put the needs of each child first. Children as young as three, and up to age seventeen, were interviewed by a specialist on our staff. Their caregivers met with one of our victim advocates to receive support and information. Medical evaluations were provided on-site by specialists from St. Christopher’s Hospital for Children and Children’s Hospital of Philadelphia. Long-term therapy was provided to 200 children by our therapists, and another 800 children were connected to mental health providers throughout the City.

All of our work was conducted in partnership with police officers from the Special Victims Unit of the Police Department, social workers from the Department of Human Services, and prosecutors from the District Attorney’s Office, as well as our medical and mental health partners. As a result of this collaboration with our expert staff, children received all of the services they needed in one location, with an experienced team of professionals who shared information at every step along the way, in order to bring healing and justice to the children we serve.

During this year we expanded our capacity to serve an even greater number of children with a full array of services: we added a bilingual Spanish speaking intake coordinator, created a new system to track the 100+ subpoenas that we receive every month, and expanded our capacity to provide therapy for toddler and pre-school age children as well as support groups for teenagers.

We are very grateful to all of you. Your generous donations provide one third of our annual budget, allowing us to be on-call 24/7, funding our mental health program, and providing transportation and interpreters for all of our clients as needed. We’re also very grateful to the Philadelphia Department of Human Services and the PA Commission on Crime and Delinquency for their continued support.

Thank you for taking the time to read these highlights. We look forward to continuing our partnership with you on behalf of sexually abused children in Philadelphia.

PCA IN 2018

In FY2018, there were 3,274 reports of alleged child sexual abuse in the City of Philadelphia. We interviewed 1,957 children about allegations of abuse and provided support services to 2,141 caregivers. We also provided on-site trauma-focused mental health therapy for 188 children, connected 1,076 to mental health partner agencies throughout the city, and provided on-site medical evaluations to 602 children.

OUR MISSION

The Philadelphia Children’s Alliance is an independent non-profit organization that promotes healing and justice for sexually abused children in Philadelphia. Using a multidisciplinary approach, we collaborate with our partners in child protection, law enforcement, and medical and mental health services to provide forensic interviews, victim support and counseling services at the Philadelphia Safety Collaborative, a co-located child-friendly facility. We are committed to using best practices and we promote this model locally and nationally.

OUR VISION

Our vision is to work with our partners so that all of Philadelphia’s sexually abused children receive the care they need and the justice they deserve.

OUR VALUES

Our values guide our behavior and are the principles by which we make decisions: Protection, Truth, Promoting Resiliency, Access, and Systemic Influence.
Shortly after six-year-old “Denise” and her family moved to a new neighborhood, Denise began first grade in her new school. The neighborhood kids all played together outside. One teenager, a 14 year-old boy, would use that opportunity to sexually abuse Denise while the other kids were playing. Denise told her mother what was happening. Her mother immediately called the police, and Denise and her family were referred to PCA. When they arrived at the facility, Denise and her mother were made to feel comfortable in PCA’s child-friendly atmosphere. While Denise spoke with a forensic interviewer, her mother spoke with one of PCA’s victim advocates, who walked her mom through the morning’s plans and assured her that PCA would maintain a relationship with the family during this crisis.

During that first day, Denise’s mom was stressed and worried about her daughter. Although she was encouraged to have her daughter see a doctor at the on-site medical clinic--a process that importantly serves to assure a child that her body is healthy--Denise’s mom felt the medical exam might cause further trauma, and so she declined. She also declined PCA’s offer of mental health therapy for her daughter. Thinking that the crisis was over, mom and daughter left PCA.

Three weeks later, Denise’s mom called PCA, stricken: Denise was acting out in school and not behaving like herself. She wanted to return to PCA to get her daughter the care she needed.

When she arrived, Denise’s mom admitted she still had anxiety around a medical exam for her daughter. That same victim advocate who had previously worked with the family recommended to the mom that she let Denise herself decide whether she’d like an exam. Denise said yes.

After a quick visit with a board-certified pediatric child abuse specialist from St. Christopher’s Hospital for Children, who works onsite at the medical clinic, Denise was assured that her body was healthy, and she made it clear to her mom that she felt relieved.

This experience convinced Denise’s mom that counseling would be useful for Denise. Denise had many sessions with one of PCA’s trauma-based therapists. As part of her therapy, Denise dictated a trauma narrative to the therapist, who wrote it all out. Together, they then illustrated the narrative. Finally, when the therapy was complete, Denise put her narrative through the paper shredder and proclaimed, “The spell is broken!”

Back home, some neighbors and even some family members didn’t believe Denise, because the boy had always been such “a good kid.” Fortunately, her parents and two older sisters were always on her team. Eventually, the family moved to another neighborhood and Denise started at a new school with a fresh start. With new confidence, Denise told her mom that she wanted to give back to PCA, and her family agreed that was a great idea. Her mother arranged a fundraiser through Facebook, raising almost $1,000 for the organization. In addition, Denise and her sisters organized an incredibly successful bear drive. Almost a year to the day when she first walked through its doors, Denise and her family brought four huge bags of stuffed teddy bears to PCA to share with other kids who will go through a similar journey of healing.
CORE SERVICES

A highly trained team of professionals at PCA allow abused children to tell their stories, using a coordinated process in a safe and welcoming space.

Intake coordinators work closely with the Police Special Victims Unit, Department of Human Services, and other partner agencies to triage referrals and schedule child interviews. They ensure collaboration at all stages of this complex process.

Forensic interviews are the cornerstone of a child abuse investigation. Their purpose is to obtain information about abuse allegations that will support accurate and fair decision-making within the criminal justice, child protection, and service delivery systems.

Victim advocates play a distinct role in a caregiver’s comfort and ability to participate in an ongoing investigation, possible prosecution, intervention, and treatment.

An on-site medical clinic is staffed by board-certified pediatric abuse specialists from St. Christopher’s Hospital for Children and the Children’s Hospital of Philadelphia.

PCA ensures that research-based, trauma-focused counseling in English and Spanish is provided to children aged 3-18 who are survivors of sexual abuse.

FRIENDS OF PCA

Initiated by volunteers, the Friends of PCA is a group of individuals who are willing to use their personal and business connections to spread the word about PCA and help us pursue new individual and corporate funding opportunities. This group hosts events, brainstorms networking ideas on behalf of PCA, shares our events and posts on social media, and helps us build a larger Philadelphia community of people and businesses that know about and support the important work we do.

Interested in becoming a Friend of PCA? Email Gabrielle Szczepanek at gabrielle@philachildrensalliance.org

18TH ANNUAL BEAR AFFAIR

PCA’s 18th Annual Bear Affair on May 3, 2018 at the Crystal Tea Room was a night to remember! Generous support from individuals and corporations led to a record-breaking night for PCA’s 18th annual event, raising $208,578.00 to support the services we provide to the victims of child sexual abuse in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA EAGLES: CHAMPIONS ON AND OFF THE FIELD

Throughout the year, we continued our #Give5toPCA fundraising campaign with Philadelphia Eagles Nick Foles, Jordan Hicks, and Trey Burton, who launched the campaign by contributing $50,000 to PCA the year before. As of the printing of this publication, the campaign has raised $17,460 from donations across the country.

The #Give5toPCA campaign also allowed us to form a close relationship with Super Bowl LII MVP Nick Foles, who continued to generously support PCA after his first gift in the summer of 2017. Thank you, Nick!
PCA supporter Michael Felder donated 100 duffel bags full of essential items for teens in 2018.

The Philadelphia Insurance Softball Tournament raised $41,000 in FY2018.

The Aon Golf Outing raised $40,000 for PCA.

Thank you to the Order of the Eastern Star and other groups that donated stuffed animals for our kids in 2018.
PCA’S PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

Court Accompaniment: To prosecute alleged perpetrators of child sexual abuse, the child and their caregiver must confront the alleged offender in court, which can be an incredibly overwhelming experience for children and their caregivers. PCA offers court accompaniment to our clients and their families to reduce the child’s uneasiness of being a witness in court; instill confidence in the caregiver’s ability to support their child; and instill confidence in the child and their ability to confront their offender.

Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children: All cases of alleged sex trafficking of minors are handled at PCA’s co-located facility. We work closely with the Philadelphia Police Special Victims Unit and the Department of Human Services to make sure that every child has access to the full constellation of services provided by PCA, including medical and mental health treatment. PCA has a full-time CSEC therapist on staff who sees many of the children and teens referred to us with concerns of trafficking. We are committed to providing every child victim of sex trafficking with the same care and coordinated response as any other referral.

NORTHEAST REGIONAL CHILDREN’S ADVOCACY CENTER

Northeast Children’s Advocacy Center (NRCAC) is a program of PCA which provides training and technical assistance for state chapters, children’s advocacy centers, and multidisciplinary teams in the Northeastern United States. Funded by a $1.2 million grant from the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, NRCAC facilitates a variety of trainings that build and strengthen the collaborative response to child abuse as well as improve outcomes for children impacted by this issue throughout the region.

During FY2018, NRCAC delivered countless trainings on topics related, but not limited to, team development and multidisciplinary team facilitation, victim advocacy, commercial sexual exploitation of children, leadership and mentorship, vicarious trauma, board development, and the standards for national accreditation.

THANKS TO OUR MENTAL HEALTH PARTNER PROVIDERS

Special thanks to PCA’s valued mental health partner providers, who support our mission to bring healing and justice to children and families in Philadelphia by providing timely evidence-based, trauma-focused treatment in neighborhoods throughout the city.
